

SAMUEL T. FRANCIS
EDITOR

RACE

the American Prospect

NPI

COMING NEXT YEAR FROM NPI

A Major Work on Race Relations

In January 2006, the National Policy Institute will publish Race and the American Prospect, a pathbreaking reassessment on the dynamic of race in U.S. culture and public policy, edited by the late Sam Francis. Dr. Francis finished the final draft of the book's introduction shortly before his death.

Fourteen authors and experts analyze how race and ethnic differences have shaped America's cultural, historical, and political landscape. Each contributor addresses different aspects of American life—from religion and politics to Southern history and sociobiology—and how the reality of race significantly influences various facets of America's national character.

Race and the American Prospect confronts "politically correct" myths about race, and meticulously refutes the prevailing fallacies of racial egalitarian orthodoxy. The authors set the record straight on a number of important issues—from crime, immigration, and demography to the social, political, and economic impact of "diversity"—in which race is consistently absent in conventional parlance.

Race and the American Prospect offers a sober assessment and unrivaled examination of the impact of race and racial diversity on American society, and will be of paramount importance to anyone concerned about America's destiny.

FOREWORD – Wayne Lutton, Ph.D.

INTRODUCTION – Samuel Francis, Ph.D.

The Return of the Repressed

Kevin Lamb

The Reality of Race

Richard Lynn, Ph.D.

Racial Differences in Intelligence, Personality, and Behavior

Joseph E. Fallon

The Costs of Racial Pluralism

Jared Taylor

The Racial Revolution

Wayne Lutton, Ph.D.

Immigration and Race

Sam G. Dickson, Esq.

Race and the South

Kevin MacDonald, Ph.D.

Jews, Blacks, and Race

Richard Faussette

Race and Religion

Derek Turner

The Dis-United Kingdom

Brent Nelson, Ph.D.

Race and the Left

J. L. Woodruff

Race in Philosophy

Samuel Francis, Ph.D.

Racial Disposition and the Managerial Revolution

Richard McCulloch

Racial Preservation

AFTERWORD – Robert S. Griffin, Ph.D.